We have left some pages blank for notes about your collection.

A note about this guide:

These prices were carefully researched over the past year. Due to the large number of Hummels, not every single version has a price range, but you can get an idea of price for nearly all pieces by looking at the TMK before or after the one you have. If you need any help, please do not hesitate to e-mail us at info@vintagerarestuff.com and we will do our best to get you a price range. This edition does have an appendix with more prices on the last pages.

This guide is geared toward prices you can get in the market, but for insurance purposes, please add 35-45% to the range.

Merry Wanderer #11

A History:

Goebel first began in Thuringia, a region of Germany that is known for its porcelain. Along with his son, William, Franz Detleff Goebel founded the company. He started by making slate pencils and children's marbles, since he didn't have the money or means to produce porcelain. In fact, porcelain production was not even legal at the time. The Coburgh Duke, who feared fires, outlawed it.

Determined to produce porcelain in his town of Oeslau, he worked hard and made profits from slate and marble. Eventually, Franz Detleff was able to petition the Duke, who gave him a small piece of land on the outskirts of the town, and permission to build his porcelain business.

The first building for his business was erected in 1876, and 3 years later they started producing. At the beginning they produced mostly high-end dinnerware and figurines.

As Franz Detleff grew older, he started to rely more on his son, William, who was great at spotting market trends. William expanded and even changed the company name to W. Goebel Porzellanfabrik. A savvy businessman, William knew the importance of the American market. He sent his son, Max Louis, then 16, to America on his behalf.

Max Louis, much like his father, had an eye for trends, and quickly started working with Marshall Field and other large U.S. companies. In 1911 he returned to Oeslau, with new knowledge and vigor.

Upon his father's death, Max Louis took over the family business. At this time Europe was moving toward urbanization and becoming much more industrial. Max Louis realized that if he were to continue to succeed, he must find a way to appeal to the emerging working class.

Some of Europe's best sculptors were called to the Goebel studios. Always the businessman, he understood the value of networking and had great relationships with many contemporary artists, whose artwork served as inspiration for many of Goebel's figurines.

When World War I caused runaway inflation in Germany, most porcelain companies closed down. Goebel, however, found a way to survive and continued to produce and expand. Earthenware (fine-grained) was added to the Goebel line in 1926.

With this new material came new and improved products, including what would become known as MI Hummel Figurines.

In 1929, just as the stock market crashed in America, Max Louis died, ending his 18 years as head of the firm. Max Louis was incredibly innovative and prolific. It was a big loss to the company.

In family business style, Max Louis's son, Franz Goebel, and his son in-law, Dr. Eugen Stocke took the reigns. With the economic crises worldwide Goebel carried on, but rapidly innovated - lamps, ashtrays, vases, candle holders, bookends, figurines – were all produced.

Blessed Event #333

In 1934 Franz Goebel found the holy grail of Goebel's figurines, the M.I. Hummel line.

Sister Maria Innocentia Hummels was a gifted artist. Her popular drawings of children were sold as cards, and it caught the attention of Franz Goebel. She would only allow Goebel to make the items if she personally approved the sculpting and painting. This is why all Hummels have a facsimile of her signature.

Sadly, Sister Hummel died at the early age of 37. Her work was proudly produced for years, until the recent cease of production in 2008.

Land In Sight #530

About this guide:

So often, Price Guides base themselves on wishful thinking. This is not one of those guides. This guide was carefully researched with an eye on reality, including the internet and auctions. We feel that if you are going to start a collection, or if you inherited a collection, you ought to know what you should pay, or what others actually will pay you, for a collection.

We give ranges; for insurance purposes, please use the higher end of the range. An important factor to consider is when your Hummel was produced. All Hummels have a trademark on the bottom (backstamp), and most of them have a date. However, the date is deceiving. Here is a guide to Trademarks.

M.I. Hummel Figurines TMK Guide
Crown TMK 1 1935 - 1949	Full Bee TMK 2 1950 - 1959	Lg. Stylized TMK 3LS 1957 - 1963	Sm. Stylized TMK 3SS 1960 - 1972

Three Line TMK 4 1964 - 1972	TMK 5 1972 - 1979	TMK 6 1979 - 1991	TMK 7 1991- 2000

TMK 8 2000 - Present

This, and this alone determines when your Hummel was produced. So, if you have a Hummel that says 1972 on it, but it has a TMK6, it's not the first time it was ever produced. If, however, you have a 1980 Hummel that has a TMK6 backstamp, you have one of the first ones for that type of Hummel. The images above show the most common forms of the TMKs but there can be slight variations, TMK6, for example, often has a small copyright symbol.

Fond Goodbye #660

A note about investing in collectibles:

All of us here in the USA are quickly finding out the same thing... our dollar is going down in value.

There's one fatal flaw with a fiat currency; it isn't backed by anything. Let's take a trip back to pre-1913, before the Federal Reserve Act. Our dollar now is worth 3 cents of what it was worth back then. "That's just inflation," you might say. Well take a look at this:

In 1950, you could buy the house you live in for the same amount of gold as it would cost today. In 1950 your house probably sold for around $10-$20 thousand dollars, and today is probably worth over $200,000. It's a good thing you put it into something of value, like house. But what if a person didn't put their money in a house, or gold, but instead, just saved it? There's no high yield interest account that could have made you that amount of money even over 50 some-odd years; even worse, what if someone decided to shove $10,000 under their mattress? What a loss they would have taken! That $10,000 couldn't even buy 1/10 of the same house.

So, how does all of this relate to collectibles?

Collectibles and antiques have something against which you can measure their value. They have rareness. No one can just make more of them to devalue them, much like what is being done to our currency. "I could just buy gold," you might say, and we'd say, yes, you should definitely have part of your portfolio as gold. But the wonderful thing about collectibles is that you actually get to enjoy your investment! Buy a rare book and read it; buy a piece of art and admire it; buy some memorabilia and get lost in the nostalgia of it all! Buy an antique and pass it down, like a family heirloom. Let's face it; you're not going to get the same quality as your grandma's old silver platter at a modern department store. Find a piece with some history and add your own to it!

Online auctions are the perfect place to find these types of treasures. Our store (www.VintageRareStuffSold.com) offers all kinds of rare and unique items.

Find ways to hang on to your hard-earned cash! In this world of credit and electronic money, we can sometimes lose track of value. We hope all who read this will be inspired to protect their nest egg, and have fun doing it!

Best Wishes,
Tammy, Matthew and Lou
